Rhodes Has Rude Awakening At Fair

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes was struck in the side of the face with a cream pie after demonstrators disrupted this morning's opening ceremonies of the 124th Ohio State Fair.

The 67-year-old governor complained of pain in his right eye and said he would seek medical treatment, according to an aide.

"He (Rhodes) didn't want to say anything, but he told me the eye hurt and he was going to see a doctor," said James Duerk, director of the Department of Economic and Community Development.

The governor opened the 124th state fair shortly after 6 a.m. today amid chants from the band of protestors who are opposed to construction of a gymnasium annex at Kent State University.

As Rhodes proclaimed, "the fair is officially open," about 20 protesters chanted in "move the gym, remember Kent State."

The group interrupted a presentation to the governor by the Ohio Apple Growers Association.

Demonstrators claiming to be members of the May 4th Coalition were able to repeat their chant only five times before they were shoved outside the fair gates by a group of about six highway patrolmen.

Coalition members are trying to stop construction of the annex near where four Kent State students were killed and nine others wounded by gunfire from the Ohio National Guard during an antiwar protest in May 1970. Rhodes was also governor at the time of shootings.

The governor's aides said the pie was pushed into Rhodes' face, striking his glasses.

Obviously angered by the protest, Rhodes pointed to the director of the All-Ohio State Fair Youth Choir and soon the chants were drowned out by the strains of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Immediately after the incident, Rhodes went to his private trailer and cleaned up. He reappeared for a cabinet breakfast at the fairgrounds wearing the same beige suit and shirt and tie.

Rhodes seemed jovial after the breakfast and stood outside the Rhodes Center buying newspapers for reporters.

Seeks GOP Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, hoping for Republican support for the new Panama Canal agreement, is giving former President Gerald R. Ford and his secretary of state special briefings on the pact.

Senate ratification of the agreement is considered less than certain and a boost from Ford and Henry A. Kissinger could help President Carter in an anticipated fight with conservatives.

Carter arranged for his two treaty negotiators and members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to provide briefings for Ford and Kissinger amid strong indications the two would endorse the agreement.

Carter sent Ambassador Sol Linowitz and Air Force Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to Ford's home in Vail, Colo., today to brief the former president on the agreement, announced last week.

Ford had plans to hold a news conference after hearing from Linowitz and Brown. A spokesman for the former president said in Colorado that the agreement was "generally consistent" with the negotiations conducted when Ford was in office. The spokesman said the odds were "60-40 we will probably go along."

Carter spoke to Ford about the canal agreement in a telephone call Monday morning lasting five to seven minutes, a White House spokesman said.

Bloomfield OKs Land Buy Offer

Legal action concerning real estate purchase was discussed by members of the South Bloomfield village council Monday night.

Council passed an ordinance which would determine the fair market value of certain real estate, and okayed another ordinance which provides for the offer to purchase real estate and to dismiss legal action on the park projects.

It was announced that council's park committee will work with engineers Dummond-Sifford, and Associates to sue the rest of the park grant to develop the land after administrative costs are paid.

A basketball court behind the council house was discussed.

Property owners who are letting hedges, trees, and shrubs block the view of traffic on corners and alleys in the village will be notified to have them trimmed.

Clerk Fern Bozman reported on a meeting with the Department of Housing and Urban Development concerning Federal Revenue Assurances, and Mayor Albert Roese reported on a recent meeting in Columbus with Sen. Howard Metzenbaum concerning federal grants.

Marshall Harold Hopkins reported on a training seminar he attended recently in Nelsonville. Topics discussed were police weaponry, hand-to-hand combat tactics, officer survival, felony stop procedures, arrest and search techniques, and use of the police baton.

Marshall Hopkins gave council a rundown of activities from Jan. 1 to Aug. 1 of work other than traffic violations.

The report includes: 18 accidents investigated, 3 assault reports, 52 assistance to other police departments, 20 breaking and entering, 3 bad checks, 6 dog bites, 9 dog complaints, 17 domestic calls, 7 fights, 16 juvenile complaints, 27 theft reports, 2 missing persons, 2 shootings, 9 prowlers, 2 robberies, 2 stolen cars, 13 vandalism reports, 21 general complaints, 6 personal illnesses, and 11 assist disabled vehicles.

Present at the meeting were Mayor Roese, Clerk Bozman, and councilmen William Murphy, Ray Roosa, John Davis, and Russell Toole.

The President had lunch with Kissinger on Monday and the former secretary of state said that if the briefing by Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Air Force Chief of Staff David Jones upholds his first impression, he would be willing to testify in favor of the pact before the Senate.

Kissinger said his impression was that the agreement is "based on the same principles that were negotiated during the Ford administration."

The pact, being written into treaty form, turns the canal over to Panama by the year 2000. The settlement concluded talks that began 13 years ago.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Linowitz and Brown, being flown West in a government plane for the Ford meeting, were going "to bring the former president up-to-date in a personal way on the exact nature of the agreement."

Powell did not say Monday whether Carter was asking for Ford's support, but he observed: "I'm sure President Ford is aware we would appreciate his support."

Kissinger said that before offering wholehearted support for the pact, he wanted to make sure that the United States retained "the right and power to defend free and uninterrupted access to the canal," which he called essential to U.S. security.

Powell said such an agreement was a goal of the negotiators "and we have such an agreement."

Study Son Of Sam Letters

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawyers for David Berkowitz entered a plea of innocent at his arraignment today on charges of murder and assault in the Son of Sam killing case. They said he would plead innocent by reason of insanity if he is brought to trial.

After the brief proceeding before State Supreme Court Justice Leonard Yoswein in Brooklyn, Berkowitz, 24, was remanded to Kings County Hospital. There he will continue the psychiatric examinations that will determine whether he is mentally capable of standing trial.

Berkowitz, his hands manacled in front of him, wore blue jeans, a blue and white pin-striped shirt with a white T-shirt underneath. He was clean-shaven and appeared alert but displayed no emotion.

The innocent plea was entered by lawyer Mark H. Heller, an associate of attorney Leon Stern who was retained by Berkowitz' father.

The arraignment was on charges stemming from the July 31 slaying of Stacy Moskowitz and the wounding of her date, Robert Violante. They were the last victims of the man police call the .44-caliber killer, who killed six young persons and wounded seven during little more than a year.

Yoswein also took up an application by attorney Philip Peltz to withdraw from the case as one of Berkowitz's attorneys. The judge said he would hold a hearing on the matter three to five days after getting the psychiatric report on Berkowitz.

But he ordered tapes of conversations reportedly made by Peltz with Berkowitz to be turned over to the court clerk and sealed. Peltz had reportedly tried to sell copies of the tapes to two newspapers.

Berkowitz was brought to Brooklyn Criminal Court under heavy guard.

"This is the most protection I have ever seen a prisoner get in the 20 years I've worked in the building," one court officer said.

The caravan that brought him included a Correction Department van that accompanied by three marked and four unmarked police cars. Several shotguns could be seen on the laps of officers as they pulled into the courthouse garage. A police helicopter flew overhead.

An estimated 40 uniformed policemen ringed the courthouse, and an equally large number of court officers were in the building.

Berkowitz was charged in the grand jury indictment Monday with murder, attempted murder, felonious assault and illegal possession of the .44-caliber Charter Arms Bulldog revolver that ballistics expert say was responsible for all the shootings.

During basic training at Ft. Dix,

N.J., Berkowitz wrote that he had been taught how to fight and shoot. He wrote that he would use these tactics one day to destroy army "lifers" — "the way they destroyed millions of people through the wars they started. One day there will be a better world. After a few heads from the heads of state are removed."

Later, he wrote, "There is one thing you must admit about me. That is, when have you ever known me to say things about love, Peace, God, etc. I mean can you ever remember me talking about this back in the world ... These feelings have been deep inside ... now I don't think I'm going insane or anything like that because I'm not ... yes it's the real me."

Iris, who wrote to Berkowitz from the apartment house in Co-Op City in the Bronx where they had both lived, now is married and 8½ months pregnant. She lives in Detroit.

Although the killings attributed to Son of Sam began July 29, 1976, the .44-caliber killer left his first written message for police last April 27, on the bloodied car where Valentina Suriani 18, and her boyfriend, Alexander Esau, 19, were gunned down. Police said it was written in "a rambling, almost incomprehensible style. He lives in a nightmare world where he sees blood-sucking vampires and Frankenstein monsters."

Forbid Kappler Leaving

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The West German government may have to refuse Italy's request to hand over an escaped Nazi war criminal because the constitution forbids extradition of German nationals, the Justice Ministry said today.

The Federal Criminal Office in Wiesbaden issued a nationwide police alert for Herbert Kappler, the 70-year-old former SS colonel who headed the Gestapo in Rome and ordered the Ardeatine Caves massacre of 335 Italians in 1944.

Kappler, reduced to 105 pounds by terminal cancer, was smuggled out of a Rome military hospital in a big suitcase by his wife early Monday, the Italian government said. He was serving a life sentence.

A West German government spokesman on Monday said that Kappler's 54-year-old wife telephoned German officials that her husband was in West Germany. The Italian government said it was asking West Germany to extradite him.

But a Justice Ministry official said that the German constitution prohibits extradition of a German national wanted for crimes abroad.

He said his ministry had not been asked yet for a ruling on Kappler's case. But he added: "The constitution applies to everybody. Whoever is a German may not be extradited."

The Italian government had rejected requests from Kappler to die in Germany. Italian officials said Mrs. Kappler, on one of her regular visits to her husband in the Celio military hospital, apparently stuffed him into a large suitcase she had brought with her and dragged it out of the hospital under the noses of military police guards.

Kappler ordered the mass execution in the Ardeatine Caves in reprisal for the killing of 32 German soldiers in downtown Rome by Italian Partisans. Among those executed were 70 Jews, and Italian Jewish groups joined Partisan veterans in demanding an explanation for the escape.

"The government said security was so tight that you couldn't even sneak out a pack of cigarettes. ... Now we learn that a trunk containing a war criminal left through the front door," said Jewish leader Fernando Piperno.

Several hundred Roman Jews held an outdoor service in front of a memorial plaque listing the victims of the massacre.

Premier Giulio Andreotti called Kappler a "symbol of the cruel Nazi occupation of Rome." He said he told Italy's ambassador to Bonn to begin extradition proceedings.

But Andreotti, who meets West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt in Verona on Friday for previously scheduled talks, said he hoped the escape would not disturb Italy's relations with West Germany.

Street Light Costs Jump In Ashville

A 40 per cent increase in street-lighting costs in Ashville was discussed Monday by members of village council.

The ordinance, which would provide a new contract with South Central Power Company for lighting streets, alleys, and roads in Ashville, passed first reading.

The village's 15-year contract for power with the company had expired.

Plans for the repair of the N & W crossing on Main St. have been received from the Ohio Department of Transportation, and representatives of the Wagner Machinery Company of Columbus demonstrated a street sweeping machine to council.

Street Commissioner William Myers said that Columbia Gas of Ohio would be completing repair work in the village.

Council learned that a petition has been filed with the Pickaway County Commissioners concerning annexation of land to the village. The petition was filed by William and Peggy Pritchard.

The ninth Federal Revenue Sharing Statement of Assurance was signed by Mayor Max Cormany.

Members present at the meeting were Mayor Cormany, councilmen Marvin Hicks, Richard Cook, Gary Throp, Nolo Gulick, Charles Morrison, and George Forquer, and Clerk Raymond L. Lindsey.

Council will meet in regular session Monday, Sept. 5, at 7 p.m.

Big Question Remains In Kutler Case

CINCINNATI (AP) — There's still one big question about the death of 8-year-old Arthur Noske. Did Dr. Stuart Kutler tell authorities where the boy's body was when he agreed to plead guilty to a lesser charge of voluntary manslaughter?

In a surprise move, Kutler abruptly ended his much publicized murder trial here Monday when he admitted beating the son of his former girlfriend to death on Feb. 4.

Kutler pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter and now faces 25 years in prison instead of a possible life sentence he could have drawn if convicted on the murder charge against him.

Neither Kutler nor the prosecutors would comment on reports that the doctor revealed the location of the body in return for the prosecution's acceptance of the plea on the lesser charge.

Police said they have been searching for the child's body ever since Arthur's mother Ann told police Feb. 18 that Kutler beat her son to death. Earlier, her story was that the boy had disappeared during a shopping trip.

Miss Noske testified that she originally agreed to tell the false story because she loved Kutler with whom she was living on Feb. 4.

When Kutler said "guilty" in a voice so soft it barely carried to the back of the courtroom, Eugene Terpay of the Cuyahoga County Sheriff's Department, turned and smiled triumphantly at his wife, one of the spectators.

Terpay was one of the chief investigators in the case which was tried in Cincinnati because Judge Harry A. Hanna ruled that Kutler could not receive a fair trial in Cleveland because of extensive pretrial publicity.

Hanna pronounced Kutler guilty at 9:32 a.m. and ordered him into sheriff's custody until sentencing Sept. 22. Then Terpay pulled the doctor's arms behind him and clamped handcuffs on his wrists.

He led Kutler through the glare of television camera lights to the Hamilton County Jail where he was scheduled to spend the night. An unmarked sheriff's car was to take him back to Cleveland today.

Defense lawyers and prosecutors said Kutler decided Friday to plead guilty and said it was strictly his decision. "There was some discussion of involuntary manslaughter," Asst. County Prosecutor Michael J. Corrigan said.

"But we said absolutely not. It had to be an admission to a knowing killing of an 8-year-old boy."

Although the jurors were told daily not to form opinions until they heard all the evidence, one male juror said after the plea, "If I'd taken a count this morning it would have been 11 or 12 for guilty." Three jurors congratulated the prosecution on the guilty plea.

Corrigan said he will decide whether to press charges of obstructing justice and destroying evidence against Miss Noske and the doctor's father William Kutler, who was implicated by Miss Noske's testimony.

William J. Lee, administrator of the Ohio State Medical Board, said Monday the board will take steps to secure the trial transcript for use in determining whether it will revoke Kutler's license to practice medicine.

Terpay was one of the chief investigators in the case which was tried in Cincinnati because Judge Harry A. Hanna ruled that Kutler could not receive a fair trial in Cleveland because of extensive pretrial publicity.

Hanna pronounced Kutler guilty at 9:32 a.m. and ordered him into sheriff's custody until sentencing Sept. 22. Then Terpay pulled the doctor's arms behind him and clamped handcuffs on his wrists.

He led Kutler through the glare of television camera lights to the Hamilton County Jail where he was scheduled to spend the night. An unmarked sheriff's car was to take him back to Cleveland today.

Defense lawyers and prosecutors said Kutler decided Friday to plead guilty and said it was strictly his decision. "There was some discussion of involuntary manslaughter," Asst. County Prosecutor Michael J. Corrigan said.

"But we said absolutely not. It had to be an admission to a knowing killing of an 8-year-old boy."

Although the jurors were told daily not to form opinions until they heard all the evidence, one male juror said after the plea, "If I'd taken a count this morning it would have been 11 or 12 for guilty." Three jurors congratulated the prosecution on the guilty plea.

Corrigan said he will decide whether to press charges of obstructing justice and destroying evidence against Miss Noske and the doctor's father William Kutler, who was implicated by Miss Noske's testimony.

William J. Lee, administrator of the Ohio State Medical Board, said Monday the board will take steps to secure the trial transcript for use in determining whether it will revoke Kutler's license to practice medicine.

ROUNDTOWN

THE Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Ashville on Friday from 12 noon to 6 p.m. at Zion United Methodist Church, 30 Plum Street

This special visit is planned to give an opportunity for residents of the Ashville area who cannot make the trip to Circleville to donate blood. The later hours also accommodate those who cannot make the 4 p.m. deadline at the Circleville visits.

The goal for the Ashville visit is 150 units of blood. Due to the summer lag in donations, it has been necessary several times recently to postpone non-emergency surgeries. In order to maintain an adequate supply of blood to meet the requirements of all 51 hospitals in the Central Ohio area, it is very important that every visit reach the 150 unit goal.

Special requests have been made by the center for types A positive, O positive, A negative and B positive for open heart surgeries next week.

NEW residents of Washington Twp. who have not registered students in grades one through six should register at the school office between the hours of 8 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. on Wednesday.

Proof of birth, immunization records, and release of records from the school formerly attended should be presented at the time of registration. If students have attended kindergarten at the McDowell Exchange School, registration at Washington is not necessary.

Marble-Cone Fire May Be Contained

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Marble-Cone fire that has devastated 204 square miles of drought-parched central California coastland may be contained within a few days, forestry officials said today.

The blaze, now the third largest in the state's history, has consumed 130,500 acres in the Los Padres National Forest and adjacent private land. It was reported 60 per cent contained.

Back-burning — fire lines set up ahead of the path of the fire with the brush or fuel burned in between — has been effective so far, officials said.

"We're hoping by Thursday we'll have the (back-burning) line tied in all the way," said William Morrison, U.S. Forest Service spokesman. "If everything goes right then, it will probably be only a few days until it will be contained."

Besides the Marble-Cone fire, six other fires still burned in California, the state Department of Forestry said.

Lightning, the culprit in a chain of nearly 1,000 fires that began Aug. 1, sparked the newest blaze Monday near Lake Elsinore in Riverside County. Flames engulfed 400 acres, but the fire was hoped to be contained later today, the CDF said.

The Marble-Cone was among those torched by nature and officials would only hazard a damage estimate of "several millions of dollars."

"It looks almost like pictures of Hiroshima after the atomic bomb," Morrison said. "There are areas of complete devastation, with only little twigs sticking out."

Meanwhile, dense smoke grounded air tankers Monday in the battle against a 2,500-acre blaze in the Klamath National Forest and the 9,500-acre fire near the Humboldt and Siskiyou county line, the CDF said.

The Bear Trap blaze in the Sequoia National Forest has scorched 1,200 acres, with no estimate for containment.

Faubus Satisfactory After Heart Surgery

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Former Arkansas Gov. Orville Faubus is reported in satisfactory condition after surgery to implant a heart pacemaker in his chest.

Faubus, 67, entered the Baptist Medical Center Friday and received the temporary pacemaker, a spokesman said Monday.

Elizabeth Faubus, his wife, told reporters that the former governor experienced chest pains on a recent trip from their home at Huntsville to Little Rock.

Faubus, a Democrat, was governor from 1954 to 1966.

Loan Defaulters Cost Taxpayers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nine-year cost to taxpayers for defaults on federally guaranteed student loans is slightly over $400 million, and the figure is rising every year, the General Accounting Office estimates.

The fiscal watchdog agency says one of every six persons who gets a loan is refusing to pay back the money.

Between 1968 and 1976, the government guaranteed four million student loans worth $4.5 billion. It reimbursed banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions $287 million for more than 280,000 recipients who defaulted, the congressional agency says.

By the end of next month, however, the GAO estimates defaults will have risen to $436 million, while the government's bad debt collections will have brought in only $33.8 million.

To deal with the problem, the GAO wants the Office of Education to step up its bad debt collection efforts, referring them as a last resort to the Justice Department for legal action.

The GAO recommends that such aggressive action be undertaken nationally, noting that the San Francisco regional office collected $946,000 in defaulted student loans in a three-month period.

This was a record for collections, which included those from persons taken to court and from others who paid up voluntarily.

The GAO says more thorough credit checks should be made of loan applicants. The loans, limited to $7,500 for undergraduates and $15,000 for graduate students, carry a belowmarket-rate interest charge of 7 per cent. Repayment, which doesn't begin until a student graduates, can take up to 10 years.

The GAO, refusing to provide names, gave these examples of people who have skipped out on their college loans:

A professional basketball player earning $85,000 a year stopped paying on a $3,500 student loan in 1973. The Office of Education made no headway in trying to collect, then a U.S. attorney had the player's wages garnished. Repayment began last February at $1,000 a month.

A psychiatrist making $31,000 a year had defaulted on an $8,700 loan. The Office of Education referred the

3 Sentenced In Philadelphia Theft Scheme

CINCINNATI (AP) — Three persons were sentenced in connection with a $205,000 theft scheme involving funds from the Philadelphia office of Consolidated Rail Corp. (Conrail).

"I feel I have to come down real hard on you," said U.S. District Court Judge David S. Porter, who Monday sentenced William O'Callaghan, 29, a former games store operator, to 10 years in federal prison.

Callaghan's sister, Mary Ann Ewans, 30, Collingswood, N.J., a former bookkeeper at Conrail offices in Philadelphia, was given a year and a day.

Robert J. Wetenkamp, 37, Springfield, Ohio, was placed on three years probation for cooperating with federal investigators.

All three pleaded guilty to one count of receiving stolen property. The government dropped four additional charges against each.

The U.S. attorney's office said the scheme involved Conrail checks which were stolen in Philadelphia. The checks were sent to Cincinnati where they were placed in bank accounts.

O'Callaghan, who now lives in Columbus, Ohio, told Judge Porter he was driven to the scheme following a series of financial problems when newspapers in the Cincinnati area identified him as a police informant against drug users.

O'Callaghan was the intended victim of an attack by a teenage gang following the report and several were arrested and convicted. Both police and O'Callaghan denied he was an informant.

case to a U.S. attorney, who arranged for the debt to be paid off in $100 monthly installments.

A debtor working for a district attorney at $12,000 a year had defaulted on $5,370 in loans in 1974. The education agency tried to settle the debt voluntarily, but the best offer it got was a settlement of $3,000. It referred the case to a U.S. attorney, who filed a lien against the debtor's savings account. Within two weeks, the government had collected all it was owed.

Idaho Wheat Farmer Has Alter Ego

POTLATCH, Idaho (AP) — By day, Lee Lisher tills 800 acres of wheat. At night, the man his neighbors call a rural Ralph Nader is a gadfly, hurling accusations at meetings of county commissioners, the highway department, the school board or even the cemetery district.

"He's a pain in the butt, but you can't help but like him," said Latah County Prosecuting Atty. William Hamlett.

When Lisher was punched in the mouth at a school board meeting, the blows barely budged the 6-foot farmer, whose 260-pound frame fits into an expansive pair of bib overalls.

Lisher, a 39-year-old father of four, had been taunting the school board about letting contracts without the bids required under state law when the son of a board member planted two haymakers on his jaw.

"I just stood there asking him what he was doing and then some other guys came over and dragged him away," Lisher said. The board member's son paid $10 to have Lisher's false teeth glued together.

Lisher quit school in the eighth grade. But he has a small library of law books and Idaho codes. If he can find a spare $97 after harvest, he wants to buy a new volume of the Idaho code of highway districts.

"I've never gotten after them for anything the law doesn't make them do," Lisher said. "Often the problem is that boards like the school board are ignorant of the law."

"It gravels these people, some of them with a college education, for someone like me to tell them they're breaking the law."

Lisher absolutely insists that "my and your elected officials" do their jobs by the letter of the law.

"One of the worst problems with county government is nepotism," Lisher said. "In the cemetery district the wife of one of the board members was the bookkeeper. She didn't make much money, but it is against the law."

Lisher informed the Latah County Planning and Zoning Commission that "I ain't going to buy no building permit and I'll stand right on my property line with a six-gun, and anyone who wants to come across will have to argue with me." He pointed out that state law didn't require building permits for farmers.

Lisher was once elected to a road district and recalls that at the meetings, "there used to be about 80 fists raised in my face." He's run twice, without success, for county commissioner.

Marble-Cone Fire May Be Contained

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Marble-Cone fire that has devastated 204 square miles of drought-parched central California coastland may be contained within a few days, forestry officials said today.

The blaze, now the third largest in the state's history, has consumed 130,500 acres in the Los Padres National Forest and adjacent private land. It was reported 60 per cent contained.

Back-burning — fire lines set up ahead of the path of the fire with the brush or fuel burned in between — has been effective so far, officials said.

"We're hoping by Thursday we'll have the (back-burning) line tied in all the way," said William Morrison, U.S. Forest Service spokesman. "If everything goes right then, it will probably be only a few days until it will be contained."

Besides the Marble-Cone fire, six other fires still burned in California, the state Department of Forestry said.

Lightning, the culprit in a chain of nearly 1,000 fires that began Aug. 1, sparked the newest blaze Monday near Lake Elsinore in Riverside County. Flames engulfed 400 acres, but the fire was hoped to be contained later today, the CDF said.

The Marble-Cone was among those torched by nature and officials would only hazard a damage estimate of "several millions of dollars."

"It looks almost like pictures of Hiroshima after the atomic bomb," Morrison said. "There are areas of complete devastation, with only little twigs sticking out."

Meanwhile, dense smoke grounded air tankers Monday in the battle against a 2,500-acre blaze in the Klamath National Forest and the 9,500-acre fire near the Humboldt and Siskiyou county line, the CDF said.

The Bear Trap blaze in the Sequoia National Forest has scorched 1,200 acres, with no estimate for containment.

Faubus Satisfactory After Heart Surgery

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Former Arkansas Gov. Orville Faubus is reported in satisfactory condition after surgery to implant a heart pacemaker in his chest.

Faubus, 67, entered the Baptist Medical Center Friday and received the temporary pacemaker, a spokesman said Monday.

Elizabeth Faubus, his wife, told reporters that the former governor experienced chest pains on a recent trip from their home at Huntsville to Little Rock.

Faubus, a Democrat, was governor from 1954 to 1966.

Loan Defaulters Cost Taxpayers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nine-year cost to taxpayers for defaults on federally guaranteed student loans is slightly over $400 million, and the figure is rising every year, the General Accounting Office estimates.

The fiscal watchdog agency says one of every six persons who gets a loan is refusing to pay back the money.

Between 1968 and 1976, the government guaranteed four million student loans worth $4.5 billion. It reimbursed banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions $287 million for more than 280,000 recipients who defaulted, the congressional agency says.

By the end of next month, however, the GAO estimates defaults will have risen to $436 million, while the government's bad debt collections will have brought in only $33.8 million.

To deal with the problem, the GAO wants the Office of Education to step up its bad debt collection efforts, referring them as a last resort to the Justice Department for legal action.

The GAO recommends that such aggressive action be undertaken nationally, noting that the San Francisco regional office collected $946,000 in defaulted student loans in a three-month period.

This was a record for collections, which included those from persons taken to court and from others who paid up voluntarily.

The GAO says more thorough credit checks should be made of loan applicants. The loans, limited to $7,500 for undergraduates and $15,000 for graduate students, carry a belowmarket-rate interest charge of 7 per cent. Repayment, which doesn't begin until a student graduates, can take up to 10 years.

The GAO, refusing to provide names, gave these examples of people who have skipped out on their college loans:

—A professional basketball player earning $85,000 a year stopped paying on a $3,500 student loan in 1973. The Office of Education made no headway in trying to collect, then a U.S. attorney had the player's wages garnished. Repayment began last February at $1,000 a month.

—A psychiatrist making $31,000 a year had defaulted on an $8,700 loan. The Office of Education referred the

3 Sentenced In Philadelphia Theft Scheme

CINCINNATI (AP) — Three persons were sentenced in connection with a $205,000 theft scheme involving funds from the Philadelphia office of Consolidated Rail Corp. (Conrail).

"I feel I have to come down real hard on you," said U.S. District Court Judge David S. Porter, who Monday sentenced William O'Callaghan, 29, a former games store operator, to 10 years in federal prison.

Callaghan's sister, Mary Ann Ewans, 30, Collingswood, N.J., a former bookkeeper at Conrail offices in Philadelphia, was given a year and a day.

Robert J. Wetenkamp, 37, Springdale, Ohio, was placed on three years probation for cooperating with federal investigators.

All three pleaded guilty to one count of receiving stolen property. The government dropped four additional charges against each.

The U.S. attorney's office said the scheme involved Conrail checks which were stolen in Philadelphia. The checks were sent to Cincinnati where they were placed in bank accounts.

O'Callaghan, who now lives in Columbus, Ohio, told Judge Porter he was driven to the scheme following a series of financial problems when newspapers in the Cincinnati area identified him as a police informant against drug users.

O'Callaghan was the intended victim of an attack by a teenage gang following the report and several were arrested and convicted. Both police and O'Callaghan denied he was an informant.

case to a U.S. attorney, who arranged for the debt to be paid off in $100 monthly installments.

—A debtor working for a district attorney at $12,000 a year had defaulted on $5,370 in loans in 1974. The education agency tried to settle the debt voluntarily, but the best offer it got was a settlement of $3,000. It referred the case to a U.S. attorney, who filed a lien against the debtor's savings account. Within two weeks, the government had collected all it was owed.

Idaho Wheat Farmer Has Alter Ego

POTLATCH, Idaho (AP) — By day, Lee Lisher tills 800 acres of wheat. At night, the man his neighbors call a rural Ralph Nader is a gadfly, hurling accusations at meetings of county commissioners, the highway department, the school board or even the cemetery district.

"He's a pain in the butt, but you can't help but like him," said Latah County Prosecuting Atty. William Hamlett.

When Lisher was punched in the mouth at a school board meeting, the blows barely budged the 6-foot farmer, whose 260-pound frame fits into an expansive pair of bib overalls.

Lisher, a 39-year-old father of four, had been taunting the school board about letting contracts without the bids required under state law when the son of a board member planted two haymakers on his jaw.

"I just stood there asking him what he was doing and then some other guys came over and dragged him away," Lisher said. The board member's son paid $10 to have Lisher's false teeth glued together.

Lisher quit school in the eighth grade. But he has a small library of law books and Idaho codes. If he can find a spare $97 after harvest, he wants to buy a new volume of the Idaho code of highway districts.

"I've never gotten after them for anything the law doesn't make them do," Lisher said. "Often the problem is that boards like the school board are ignorant of the law."

"It gravels these people, some of them with a college education, for someone like me to tell them they're breaking the law."

Lisher absolutely insists that "my and your elected officials" do their jobs by the letter of the law.

"One of the worst problems with county government is nepotism," Lisher said. "In the cemetery district the wife of one of the board members was the bookkeeper. She didn't make much money, but it is against the law."

Lisher informed the Latah County Planning and Zoning Commission that "I ain't going to buy no building permit and I'll stand right on my property line with a six-gun, and anyone who wants to come across will have to argue with me." He pointed out that state law didn't require building permits for farmers.

Lisher was once elected to a road district and recalls that at the meetings, "there used to be about 80 fists raised in my face." He's run twice, without success, for county commissioner.

Carter Gives Self Pluses And Minuses

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter credits himself with improving the image of the federal government in the minds of Americans, but he concedes that his administration has yet to prove it can solve the nation's toughest problems.

In a critique of his performance after six months in office, Carter concluded that progress has been made in improving the tone of government.

But the president expressed discouragement over efforts to lower inflation and unemployment. And he admitted that there have been no spectacular achievements in foreign affairs.

In a personal report card, Carter summed up his first months in office

this way:

"Specifies too early to say. Tone, trust-pretty good."

Carter had been asked to rate himself as President in an interview with ABC News, conducted in his hometown of Plains, Ga., last Wednesday and broadcast Sunday.

"I think as far as the tone of the government and the attitude of our people toward the government, the marks would be fairly high," the President said. "As far as tangible results in this first six months on economy, they have been somewhat disappointing."

Carter noted that there has been no major letup in inflation, and that the unemployment rate has fallen only slightly since he took office.

"We have not had any major breakthroughs in foreign affairs, although we have a very coherent program that we are pursuing," he said. "We are tenacious and determined to improve the situation in Southern Africa, in the Middle East, with the Soviets, on SALT (a strategic arms limitation treaty) and test bans against atomic weapons."

Carter, who campaigned for the presidency as an outsider to Washington, said he is feeling "more and more like an insider" — due to what he called a spirit of cooperation and harmony with both the Democratic and Republican leadership in Congress.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Trash Crashing Invasion Of Privacy

DEAR ABBY: Someone signed NORTH HOLLYWOOD asked you how to deal with a neighbor whose biggest enjoyment in life was going through his neighbors' trash cans, and you replied, "Why not regard it as a somewhat childish pleasure, and let it go at that?"

You are dead wrong, Abby! MY trash is MY business. It contains my bills, personal correspondence, empty prescription bottles, discarded publications, empty food containers, bottles and possibly hundreds of other items that happen to be my private affair and not my neighbor's.

I've never known you to be a Pollyanna before. Please don't start now!

PRIVATE PERSON

DEAR PERSON: You're right. I was wrong. I was also informed that in some places, snooping through someone's trash is considered an invasion of privacy, and is therefore illegal!

DEAR ABBY: I am involved with an older married man, and to tell you the truth, I feel a little guilty about it.

He keeps telling me I shouldn't feel guilty because a married man who is satisfied at home would never even look at another woman. The way he puts it, "If a man is well-fed at home he will not go to a restaurant."

Is that true?

GOT THE GUILTS

DEAR GOT: No. Regardless of how well-fed some men are, six hours later, they're hungry again!

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for making your readers aware that people in wheelchairs can enjoy sex, too. So often, it is assumed, that because a person is in a wheelchair he is unable to function sexually.

Paraplegics and quadriplegics are generally sexually attractive people because of their self-awareness, their sensuality, their courage in coping successfully with their handicaps, their maturity and their genuine appreciation of other people—regardless of whether they are dependent on them.

"Paras and quads" as they often refer to themselves, are human beings with the rare ability to integrate sexually expressions into meaningful personal relationships. In that sense, they have much to teach many members of the non-disabled population, who may be sexually handicapped because they are unable to do the same.

People who choose paras and quads for partners are really the fortunate ones. The parents of those who choose paras and quads should be thankful that they have raised children with depth, sensitivity and quality, and not worry whether their child's chosen mate can walk or "ride" down the aisle to be married. God bless those paras and quads!

All Ohio Field In Lottery Draw

CLEVELAND (AP) — An all-Ohio field of six contestants will participate in Thursday's drawing of the Ohio Lottery's Pot O' Gold game.

Frank B. Williams of Columbus, who won $55,000 in last week's drawing, will return and compete against Calvin P. Sapp of Ravenna; Arthur C. Blunt of Columbus; Helen A. Rousis of Lorain; Edward J. Gualtieri of Dover and Andrew M. Hudak of Girard.

Bill On Minimum Terms Offered

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Legislation setting minimum prison terms for offenders who repeatedly commit violent crimes has been submitted to the General Assembly.

State Rep. Dennis Eckart, D-Euclid, submitted the bill on Friday. It also would create 15 new judgeships to reduce delays in appeals.

The repeaters' legislation would deny bail to any offender awaiting appeal who has a previous conviction for a violent crime. The only other set of mandatory sentences in Ohio statutes are for drug offenses, said Atty. Gen. William J. Brown, who announced his support for the bill on Monday.

New appellate judgeships suggested by the bill would add four in Cleveland, three each in Cincinnati and Columbus, two in Dayton and one each in Zanesville, Akron and Toledo.

LOGAN ELM MAJORETTES — During the week of July 17, the Logan Elm High School Majorettes attended the Fred J. Miller Clinic at Defiance. They received nine ribbons in competition and a trophy for the best spirited squad at camp. Jackie Cave received an Outstanding Majorette of the Week trophy. Squad members are from the left, Rhonda Connell, Jackie Cave, Head Majorette, Kim Williams, Kim Harris and Brenda Bolender. Their advisor is Mrs. Kathy Morris.

Xenia Hit By Fire In Downtown

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — Mitchell Singer is determined to stay in business, maybe in downtown Xenia, even though fire has finished the demolition of his women's shop that a killer tornado started.

Singer was in the store when a 1974 tornado ripped off the store's roof and scattered its contents. He watched his property destroyed again Monday as fire wiped out the business he has run for the last 26 years.

"Except for the back wall, we're back to where we were right after the tornado," said Singer.

Sixty firemen fought the afternoon blaze which spread through four buildings in an area still showing scars from the tornado, which killed 33 and injured 2,000.

Xenia Fire Chief Charles Beason said the blaze started in an upstairs storage area of Singer's store and ignited false ceilings, causing the blaze to spread quickly. Flames were contained to the second stories of Singer's store, another clothing store, a theater and a law office.

No damage estimate had been made late Monday, but contents of the stores were a total loss, Beason said.

"It was the kind of fire that the smoke was so intense that you couldn't see for the whole block," said Bob Stewart, city manager.

Two hours elapsed before the blaze was put under control. Two firefighters were treated and released at local hospitals for smoke inhalation.

What the 1974 tornado didn't destroy at Singer's store, the rains did, and Singer recalled that it took three months to reopen.

As he watched firemen pouring water into his store Monday, Singer said he is determined to reopen.

"If I don't open here, I'll open somewhere," said Singer, who lives in Dayton. "Material things you can replace. I just thank God nobody was killed."

Singer recalled that when the tornado struck, his store was closed. Monday his store was open and bustling with employees and customers.

"Besides," he added, "my wife died four months ago. After that, this was an anticlimax."

Attend State Jaycee Meet

Mike Gilmore and Bruce Bell attended a state meeting of Jaycees last weekend in Canton.

Bell, a state director, competed in the state competition of speak-up and spark-plug and won sixth place.

In addition to attending meetings aimed towards the president and state director, Bell and Gilmore, who is president of the Circleville Jaycees, attended meetings on such subjects as growth, public relations, chapter management, and the elderly assistance program.

All-States are held three times a year to keep local officers and members informed of programs available to local chapters for the betterment of their communities.

Persons interested in becoming a Jaycee should call 474-7048 or 474-4645.

UMW Presidents To Meet Today

BELLAIRE, Ohio (AP) — Presidents of United Mine Workers locals in District 6 will meet here today to thrash out differences over the spreading strike.

About half the 16,000 miners in the eastern Ohio, northern West Virginia district were off the job Monday, according to John Guzek, district president. Some were protesting plans to cut medical benefits, others stayed away because of threats or roving pickets at their mines, Guzek said.

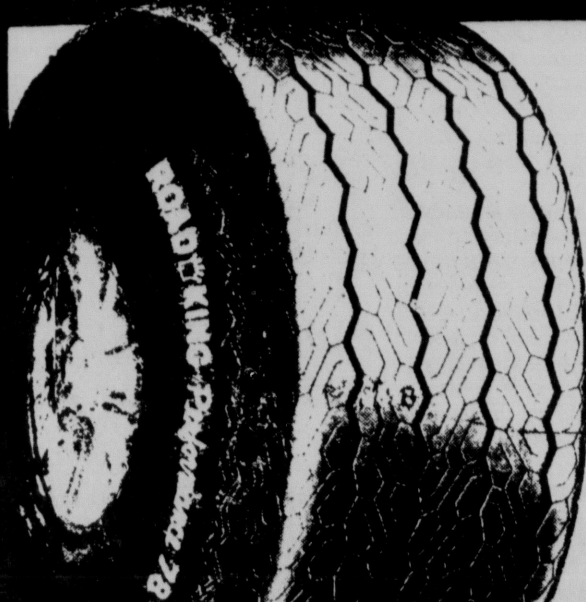

The local presidents will do the talking Tuesday, Guzek added. The idea is to get everyone together, either working or staying home.

"What we're going to do, we're going to do as a whole," he said.

The year 1890 was a peak year for Ohio's commercial fisheries; 45 million pounds of fish were caught in Lake Erie.—AP

Xenia Hit By Fire In Downtown

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — Mitchell Singer is determined to stay in business, maybe in downtown Xenia, even though fire has finished the demolition of his women's shop that a killer tornado started.

Singer was in the store when a 1974 tornado ripped off the store's roof and scattered its contents. He watched his property destroyed again Monday as fire wiped out the business he has run for the last 26 years.

"Except for the back wall, we're back to where we were right after the tornado," said Singer.

Sixty firemen fought the afternoon blaze which spread through four buildings in an area still showing scars from the tornado, which killed 33 and injured 2,000.

Xenia Fire Chief Charles Beason said the blaze started in an upstairs storage area of Singer's store and ignited false ceilings, causing the blaze to spread quickly. Flames were contained to the second stories of Singer's store, another clothing store, a theater and a law office.

No damage estimate had been made late Monday, but contents of the stores were a total loss, Beason said.

"It was the kind of fire that the smoke was so intense that you couldn't see for the whole block," said Bob Stewart, city manager.

Two hours elapsed before the blaze was put under control. Two firefighters were treated and released at local hospitals for smoke inhalation.

What the 1974 tornado didn't destroy at Singer's store, the rains did, and Singer recalled that it took three months to reopen.

As he watched firemen pouring water into his store Monday, Singer said he is determined to reopen.

"If I don't open here, I'll open somewhere," said Singer, who lives in Dayton. "Material things you can replace. I just thank God nobody was killed."

Singer recalled that when the tornado struck, his store was closed. Monday his store was open and bustling with employees and customers.

"Besides," he added, "my wife died four months ago. After that, this was an anticlimax."

Attend State Jaycee Meet

Mike Gilmore and Bruce Bell attended a state meeting of Jaycees last weekend in Canton.

Bell, a state director, competed in the state competition of speak-up and spark-plug and won sixth place.

In addition to attending meetings aimed towards the president and state director, Bell and Gilmore, who is president of the Circleville Jaycees, attended meetings on such subjects as growth, public relations, chapter management, and the elderly assistance program.

All-States are held three times a year to keep local officers and members informed of programs available to local chapters for the betterment of their communities.

Persons interested in becoming a Jaycee should call 474-7048 or 474-4645.

UMW Presidents To Meet Today

BELLAIRE, Ohio (AP) — Presidents of United Mine Workers locals in District 6 will meet here today to thrash out differences over the spreading strike.

About half the 16,000 miners in the eastern Ohio, northern West Virginia district were off the job Monday, according to John Guzek, district president. Some were protesting plans to cut medical benefits, others stayed away because of threats or roving pickets at their mines, Guzek said.

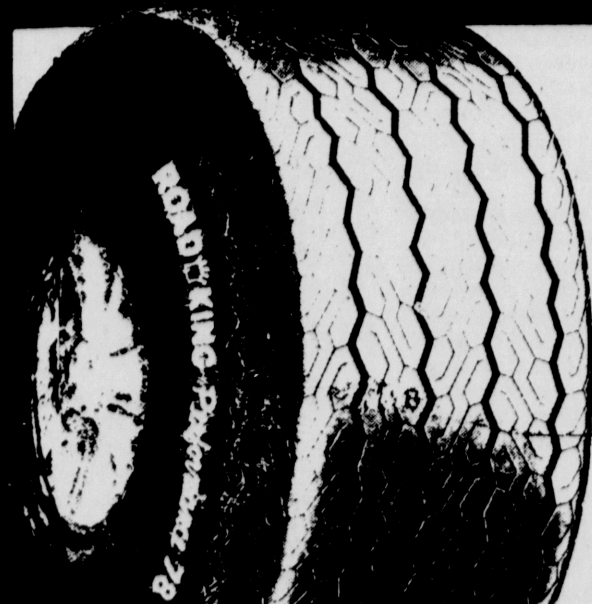

The local presidents will do the talking Tuesday, Guzek added. The idea is to get everyone together, either working or staying home.

"What we're going to do, we're going to do as a whole," he said.

The year 1890 was a peak year for Ohio's commercial fisheries; 45 million pounds of fish were caught in Lake Erie.—AP

Given a choice on the new product market of a mass of bilious green muck which doesn't do anything but ooze through the fingers, a device which projects both image and sound on a TV screen from a flat disc or the latest electronic cooking gadgetry, the consumer probably would go for the latter two, right?

Not necessarily. That green stuff known as Slime has been and is one of the merchandising sensations of the year. What it proves about consumer tastes is open to debate, except that it isn't the first time a perfectly nonsensical — but entirely different — product came along to take the fancy of at least part of the public.

It also proves that no matter how heavy the investment a company places on developing a product, the verdict isn't in until that product has to compete with thousands of others for the consumer's dollar. There is a science to marketing, of course, but it is far from infallible.

That isn't the way

Car Doctor

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
POUND RIDGE, N.Y. — If your child becomes ill, in this small suburban community, it's unlikely you'll find a doctor who'll make a house call.

But if your car is indisposed — develops a combustion cough, say, or a feverish engine — a mobile auto repair station will speed to your garage, prepared to operate.

Out of the huge van, which is labeled "Shade Tree Fix-It," will leap a tiny woman named Judy Bevans, the only known female car-doctor in the country.

With her will be a burly fellow named Bruce Buccarelli, who has been referred to as her "partner in grime." Their jointly owned van is equipped with bottle nitrogen to power their $15,000 worth of sophisticated tools which can do anything for your auto that a service station can do — and right on your own premises.

"The real value of our service," says Judy, "is that we can fix your car right on the spot. You don't have to leave it for the day, tying up your transportation while mechanics get around to working on it."

Judy Bevans, who conceived the idea for the mobile repair station, is a commuter's wife and mother of three children, aged seven through 14. Last autumn, she was purely a housewife — a highly educated housewife, living in a lovely hilltop contemporary in this rural community. She began to see the handwriting on the wall. It said: "The kids are growing up, and you're growing restless. Before it's too late, you'd better find something you can do for the rest of your life."

Well, the trouble with handwriting on the wall is that it offers sobering truths, but leaves it to the beholder to take the initiative. Judy weighed the possibilities. She applied to Columbia University to take a Ph.D. in gerontology, and she investigated the possibility of opening an ice cream parlor in town. While waiting for results, she met Buccarelli — an experienced car mechanic — in the office of the local Volunteer Ambulance Corps.

"We were sitting there talking," she recalls, "and somehow I got to complaining about the car-fixing business, and how I was pretty tired of being at the mercy of my car. Bruce told me I should go to a garage and tell them I want to be a mechanic, and make them send me to school. He was probably kidding, but I went — and they showed me the door."

The idea of the mobile van gradually evolved, after Buccarelli said he'd show Judy how to fix her car, and saw that she meant business. Judy's business executive husband was enthusiastic — not only because it made his wife happy, but because "he now has instant service on his car."

Pooling their savings, they bought a used '72 van from the local nursery for $2,500 and equipped it with the costly equipment which Bruce had used in 10 years of work as a mechanic. They opened Shade Tree Fix-It on Christmas, and — even though last winter was the coldest and snowiest in several years — have done a good business.

All their fees for garage calls are based on a standard service station "flat rate book." "Oh, no, we don't charge for the fact that we're making house calls," Judy grins. "That wouldn't be fair. Sure, it takes gasoline to drive around to your house, but on the other hand, we don't have overhead like service stations do — and they don't charge the consumer for their rent, gas and electricity."

Everything they make is poured back into equipment. "We have almost everything a service station has, except a hydraulic lift. And we don't need that. Bruce uses a jack. It's good enough that he can get under the car and do the work."

Judy admits she now has a "tremendous respect for what you need to know about cars. I can handle most of the tools, but handling tools is a minor part. It's finding the trouble in marketing works in many parts of the world. In Russia, decisions on what to produce, how much to charge and what colors to paint the products are made by commissars, not consumers. If the housewife wants a washing machine and can afford the high price she will have little choice of models and may have to wait until one is available.

Few individuals fully appreciate the system which produces a Slime until they have lived under another.

these complex systems that's the chief problem. I have had to start with step one, learning what boy-kids know after one day. So sure, I have the demeaning part of the job. I put away, and I pick up.

"On some problems, Bruce will say, 'Okay, this is yours,' and then I'll take care of it — while he puts away, and picks up. And I feel useful. While we work, I can teach women how to change plugs, and how to deal with the common no-start problems, and how to change oil."

Bruce adds, "Judy's learning, and she's going to be very good. Because she's so intelligent." That was affirmed when her application to study for a Ph.D. was approved — too late.

"I was already entrenched in auto mechanics," she says. "I'm happy now, the way I am. I get dirtier than any woman I know, because I climb in and out of cars a lot. That's because as Bruce says, the best asset of a mechanic is to be tiny enough to get in and out of things..."

NEW YORK (AP) — A dispute between two professors has confused a lot of people who thought they understood the stock market, and probably has loosened their already limp grip on the laws of economic and statistics, if not physics.

The hassle has moved from the campus to Washington, where it will be considered by a Senate subcommittee on possible pension fund legislation. And so, therefore, some legislative aids might lose their grip too.

The question is this: Does the concentration of buying-selling by institutions, especially of Morgan Guaranty Trust, the biggest pension trust manager, directly affect the prices of stocks?

In testimony last year, Prof. Roy A. Schotland of Georgetown University Law School said, yes, institutional trading does affect prices. The impact, he said, was adverse, hurting pension beneficiaries and other investors.

Morgan Guaranty didn't like that conclusion, and so hired Prof. David W. Miller of Columbia University, a highly respected statistician and consultant. He disagreed, emphatically.

"There is no indication that Morgan Guaranty's trading had any effect on stock price changes," said Miller. "Professor Schotland's statistical study as it is designed cannot sustain the conclusions he draws from it."

Reached in West Virginia by the New York Times, Schotland countered by declaring Miller's methodology imperfect. "It will come apart" upon further study, he said, in effect hurling Miller's accusation right back at him.

That trading by an investor of Morgan's size-it accounted for 38.5 per cent of all buying in Kaiser Aluminum in 1975—would not affect a stock price "defies logic and the most elementary supply and demand laws of economics," he said.

Most investors, it seems fair to say, would be inclined to side with Schotland, or otherwise conceded that their understanding of the market, their vocation or avocation, was as scrambled as their knowledge of statistics.

Is it even conceivable, they asked, that an investor with 600 pension trust accounts and tens of millions of dollars to invest, would have no impact on prices?

Doesn't this contradict the laws of supply and demand? Newton's law of motion? If you pound a board with a hammer, a ball with a bat or a stock with a sell order—isn't it all the same?

Saxbes Hold Yard Sale

MECHANICSBURG, Ohio (AP) — Not everyone can make $5,000 from a yard sale, but when your name is William B. Saxbe, you've got a lot to sell.

Saxbe is a former attorney general, former ambassador and former senator who "collected a lot of junk" on his world travels. So they held a weekend yard sale here to dispose of some of it.

"We sold pretty much everything we wanted too," Saxbe's wife, Dolly, said Monday.

The most expensive item purchased was a room-size Persian rug. That brought about $1,500. The least expensive item?

"Would you believe one of our volunteer helpers sold a broken brick for 50 cents?" Mrs. Saxbe said. "We had used it to hold down the plastic we covered some of the books with under the tent."

Mrs. Saxbe estimates several thousand people attended the sale. "At least it seemed like it," she said. They came from near and far as far as South Carolina and Massachusetts.

"It was worth it," Mrs. Saxbe said. "It was a lot of fun and we all had a good time."

But, she added, it won't be an annual event. "It was too much work. 'Now it's time to start collecting again.'"

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

High blood pressure once frightened doctors and their patients because there was so little that could be done to control hypertension.

The last three decades have brought spectacular advances for the control of this life-threatening disorder. Patients given one of the many known effective drugs quickly respond and are relieved of the symptoms associated with it.

Now, a new problem has arisen. It has been found that both private patients and clinic patients will, after a while, for no explainable reason, stop taking their medication. Physicians, psychologists, psychiatrists and sociologists have been trying to understand and explain why patients fail to appear for their needed follow-up care.

It was found that clinic patients drop out of their treatment program because of the great amount of time spent waiting to be seen by the doctor. It was found that the average waiting time for a doctor in a clinic was about two hours. This was followed by another hour of waiting at the hospital pharmacy. Travel time to and from the hospital, in addition to the long delays in the clinic, presented another problem.

In one particular clinic it was found that patients never had more than seven minutes with the doctor. Consequently, there was no real relationship between the patients and their doctor and there was no time or opportunity to have any of their questions answered by the doctor. Nor was there time to emphasize the need for sustained drug treatment, even in the absence of the former symptoms.

Follow-up treatment is very often abandoned, both in private practice and in clinics, when patients become free of symptoms.

All patients must be motivated to continue treatment. Such motivation depends on the quality of the doctor-patient relationship. It is sad that so many patients in all social and economic classes become "high blood pressure dropouts" and thus invite the possibility of complications.

I take water pills, especially during the time of my menstrual period. My friends tell me that I must be careful because potassium is lost in the urine. I'm tired of eating bananas to restore the potassium. This is what all the girls do. Are there any other fruits that are high in potassium?

Miss L. T. A., Ken.

Dear Miss A.:

Well-wishing friends sometimes push a person into a state of confusion.

I hope I'm right in assuming that the water pills you're taking were given to you by a physician. If this is so, doctors, anticipating a potassium loss in the urine, will suggest taking a pill of potassium to replace the loss.

In addition to bananas, raisins, dates, cantaloupe and prunes are sources high in potassium. Artichokes, tomatoes and Brussel sprouts lead the vegetable list for potassium.

Undershorted Youth Gets Little Help

CLEVELAND (AP) — A 16-year-old youth found someone breaking into his Cleveland home Sunday morning, but received little help when he ran through his neighborhood seeking aid. He was wearing only his undershorts.

Eugene R. Brown of Akron, who is buying a duplex and working here so he can attend Cleveland's aviation high school, already had fired a shotgun blast at the prowler. But he feared a shootout because the man was holding another of his guns, so he ran from his home to find a telephone to call police.

Brown first had tried to use the phone at the home of a friend, Marie Maksimov, 16. Just as he completed dialing, the girl's father, Boris, chased him out before the troubled youth could explain.

As he ran to another house, a woman threw a bottle at him.

Finally another neighbor, Evelyn Barger, loaned him both a phone to call officers and a raincoat to cover himself.

Brown explained later he was asleep when he heard a crash from the rear of his house. He picked up a shotgun he kept for protection because the house was the target of a previous break-in and fired when he saw a strange man coming out of a bedroom carrying another shotgun.

As it turned out, police arrived in time to arrest a youth and a wounded man as the latter left Brown's home. The officers had been called by neighbors who had seen strangers enter Brown's home.

A third man was fleeing as police arrived. The youth who was arrested was picked up as he sat in a car in front of Brown's house.

Pidgeon Stable After Surgery

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Actor Walter Pidgeon is recovering from surgery that removed a blood clot from his brain, according to a spokesman at St. John's Hospital.

The 78-year-old urbane leading man of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer films of the 1930 was in stable condition Sunday night, the spokesman said.

A source close to the family said Pidgeon was admitted to the hospital Aug. 4 after he fell at a meeting of the Motion Picture Relief Fund. He was operated on Friday night when his condition worsened.

Pidgeon was in the intensive care ward, and "barring any complications he is on the way to recovery," the spokesman said.

In addition to bananas, raisins, dates, cantaloupe and prunes are sources high in potassium. Artichokes, tomatoes and Brussels sprouts lead the vegetable list for potassium.

Undershorted Youth Gets Little Help

CLEVELAND (AP) — A 16-year-old youth found someone breaking into his Cleveland home Sunday morning, but received little help when he ran through his neighborhood seeking aid.

He was wearing only his undershorts.

Eugene R. Brown of Akron, who is buying a duplex and working here so he can attend Cleveland's aviation high school, already had fired a shotgun blast at the prowler. But he feared a shootout because the man was holding another of his guns, so he ran from his home to find a telephone to call police.

Brown first had tried to use the phone at the home of a friend, Marie Maksimov, 16. Just as he completed dialing, the girl's father, Boris, chased him out before the troubled youth could explain.

As he ran to another house, a woman threw a bottle at him.

Finally another neighbor, Evelyn Barger, loaned him both a phone to call officers and a raincoat to cover himself.

Brown explained later he was asleep when he heard a crash from the rear of his house. He picked up a shotgun he kept for protection because the house was the target of a previous break-in and fired when he saw a strange man coming out of a bedroom carrying another shotgun.

As it turned out, police arrived in time to arrest a youth and a wounded man as the latter left Brown's home. The officers had been called by neighbors who had seen strangers enter Brown's home.

A third man was fleeing as police arrived. The youth who was arrested was picked up as he sat in a car in front of Brown's house.

Pidgeon Stable After Surgery

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Actor Walter Pidgeon is recovering from surgery that removed a blood clot from his brain, according to a spokesman at St. John's Hospital.

The 78-year-old urbane leading man of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer films of the 1930s was in stable condition Sunday night, the spokesman said.

A source close to the family said Pidgeon was admitted to the hospital Aug. 4 after he fell at a meeting of the Motion Picture Relief Fund. He was operated on Friday night when his condition worsened.

Pidgeon was in the intensive care ward, and "barring any complications he is on the way to recovery," the spokesman said.

A ship explosion on April 16, 1947, in Texas City, Texas, resulted in 561 deaths.

Cincinnati Wins EPA Grant

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati hopes to be America's first river city to develop a practical system to take chemical pollutants out of drinking water.

The Cincinnati Waterworks put out a rush order for bids on activated charcoal Monday, immediately after winning a $3 million, two-year grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

"I think this is one of the largest grants ever to a city water system," said Richard Miller, director of the Cincinnati Waterworks.

"But this doesn't mean we're not going to keep pushing for an early warning system (for pollution) on the Ohio River," said Miller.

Cincinnati's water system supplies Hamilton County, which has one of the highest rates of cancer among adult males. The New Orleans area was another named several years ago in a study which noted that cancer rates were higher where drinking water supplies are taken from surface water like the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

The EPA grant will be a cost and analysis study, said Miller. The waterworks will use powdered carbon to filter the raw water instead of sand in three of its 57 filtration bins.

Three will be switched over in September and three more in May, 1978. In addition, a carbon contact filter, which pumps the water through a 30-inch pipe lined with charcoal, will be added at the same time.

"We want to see which method is the cheapest." By next May, 40 per cent of the city's drinking water will be so filtered, he said.

"The important thing is we'll have the in-house analytical capacity. We'll be checking the raw water every day to see what's in it and we'll find the pollutants even if we don't get an early warning," Miller said.

Cincinnati, with other cities along the Ohio River, are pushing for an early warning system in the wake of a series of chemical spills in the river, including a 70-ton upriver spill of carbon tetrachloride that went through undetected this spring.

Carbon tet was described by authorities as a carcinogen, a cause of cancer.

"There will be an almost immediate change in the odor, taste and appearance of the drinking water," said Miller.

The grant will enable the waterworks to buy carbon, hire chemists, set up a laboratory and a furnace that will allow the utility to reactivate the carbon by burning out the impurities, Miller said.

EPA officials recommended carbon filtration for water systems along the river.

Barber School May Get Cut

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Poor salary incentive and lack of support from the professionals may mean an end to what officials say is the most successful vocational training at the Ohio State Reformatory.

The reformatory barber school that trained inmates to become licensed barbers under the direction of the Ohio Barber Board has been without a certified teacher since February.

Prison officials have been unsuccessful in recruiting a new instructor. Without a teacher, the school could lose its state certificate and could be forced to close permanently.

Supt. Frank Gray said in a recent interview the school now is being used by inmates who received some training there to give haircuts to other inmates. Gray explained that one factor discouraging potential applicants is the $10,500 annual salary.

"I think money is a big part of it," Gray said. He said the salary is set by the legislature and cannot be changed by the prison administration.

Gray also said he suspected the state barber board is not trying as hard as it could to help the prison keep its barber school in operation. He said the barbering trade has faltered in recent years, adding the board probably would not be opposed to slicing the number of barbers by closing the only prison barber school in the state.

"I think it is a little more than a coincidence that we are not getting better cooperation from the barber board," Gray said. "That board is leaving it up to us and we don't have the access to people that it has."

"Even with the board's help, it would be damn tough for us because of the pay scale," Gray said.

Jerry Campbell, reformatory vocational supervisor, said about 15 inmates were enrolled in the one-year program at the barber school when it was operating. Graduates were given an apprentice license which allowed them to study under a working barber before receiving a master barber's certificate. He said the school had a record of placing 80 per cent of its graduates as apprentices.

Speech Clinic A Success

The summer speech clinic which was sponsored and funded by the Pickaway County Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults has ended its six weeks of speech therapy for children from Circleville and Pickaway County schools.

Thirty-four Pre-school, kindergarten and elementary children from the Circleville and county schools enrolled in the speech therapy program held daily at the Corwin Street Elementary School. Those with speech, language, stuttering, vocal nodule and hearing problems were given service by therapists Jane Freiburger and Lynn Matyas.

Selection of those clients accepted for therapy was based on the following priorities:

Children who were previously enrolled in a speech therapy program in the Circleville or Pickaway County schools and needing the continuity of a summer program, or were on the schools' waiting list;

Pre-school children starting school in the fall, and adults.

The 1977 summer speech clinic was the first one sponsored by the Pickaway County Easter Seal Society, and the Society hopes it will be able to continue providing a summer speech clinic for those children and adults in need of speech therapy during the summer months.

The Pickaway County Easter Seal Society is grateful to the Circleville City Schools for the use of the Corwin Street Elementary building for the summer clinic.

Add together a lot of good singing and dancing, on top of some excellent acting, with a sprinkle of humor, and you have all the ingredients of "Godspell," held Monday evening at the Sugarloaf Mountain.

Some of the cast of "Tumseh!" change character on Mondays during August to perform passages from the Gospel according to St. Matthew in such a lighthearted manner that it cannot be confused with a religious revival.

There is no plea for the audience to follow Christ, no collection basket passed around, and no praises or chants.

What the cast of "Godspell" does is sing such songs as "Day by Day," "Save the People," "Turn Back, O Man," along with 11 other selections.

Hours will be from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Musical accompaniment is provided by a rock group of four people.

There are 13 actors and actresses, portraying the 12 disciples and Jesus Christ. They wear street clothing during the performance, describing a modern interpretation of Christ's days on earth. Instead of the flowing robes as depicted in most Bible scenes, jeans, tee-shirts and tennis shoes are worn. All the cast members use their stage names if spoken to during the performance.

The plot involves the life of Christ from the meeting with John the Baptist, his time of preaching to the disciples through his crucifixion on the cross. The modern Bible study is managed by the disciples acting out parables in present-day language. Humor is constantly added from the sidelines, with remarks such as including "Hamburger Helper" in one of the gospels.

Audience involvement is continuous as the characters use the outdoor bleachers and aisle ways as part of the stage. The Resurrection of Christ ends the play as the audience is chilled, even on a warm evening, to see Jesus carried up the aisle with the disciples following and singing priase.

The play was a beautiful portrayal of a religious theme entwined with humor and music. The cast members would have received a standing ovation if they would have come back on to the stage.

Next Monday is the final performance of "Godspell" at the outdoor theatre. The inexpensive tickets may be purchased on a first-come-first-served basis until the beginning of the performance at 9 p.m. The show ends at 10:45 p.m.

Couple United In July Ceremony At Zion Church

MR. AND MRS. EDWIN CHARLES LONG

The Zion United Methodist Church, Ashville, was the setting for the 7:30 p.m., July 15 wedding of Miss Pamela Lyn Hutchinson, and Mr. Edwin Charles Long.

The Rev. John Currans performed the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hutchinson, Ashville, and the son of Mr. Ronald Long, Ashville and Mrs. Barbara Long, Circleville.

Rhodes May Not Accept Resignation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The head of the embattled state Transportation Research Center has tendered his resignation, but Gov. James A. Rhodes says he may not accept it.

Rhodes said Monday at an afternoon news conference he had not received the resignation of Robert F. Dreyer, and may not accept it because "we have two or three things going up there and there may be a very important announcement soon."

He said the matter involves a possible major research contract.

Rhodes added that Dreyer has "done a good job up there. He should stay on."

However, the governor said in response to another question, that while he doesn't want to accept the resignation, Dreyer "can quit if he wants too."

Dreyer, in a letter to Rhodes dated Aug. 10 and made public Monday, cited the transfer of fiscal control of the center to the state Controlling Board as the reason for his resignation as chairman of the center's board of directors.

Dreyer said fiscal control of the facility is "the dominant function of a board." Since the legislature recently shifted this control elsewhere, "it behooves anyone who believes in the nonduplication of government functions to act accordingly."

"My resignation, therefore, is simply a logical function of this situation," Dreyer said in his letter.

Dreyer has been a member of the board since its inception in 1969, and its chairman since 1970. His resignation, dated Aug. 10, was effective immediately.

The $30 million center, which tests the safety of automobiles on an 8,000-acre site some 40 miles northwest of Columbus, was the target of a critical report late last year by State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson.

Ferguson called the center "an albatross" and said it has lost more than $20 million trying to run itself as a private corporation.

Dreyer refuted the charges and defended the center's freedom from the usual state controls, but the legislature passed — and Rhodes signed — an order putting it under the controlling board.

Ex-Patrolman Behind Bar Now

PIQUA, Ohio (AP) — About two years ago, patrolman Doug Groves was called to Helen's Tavern to help county authorities break up a disturbance in which another policeman was stabbed and four persons injured.

Today, ex-cop Groves is behind the bar of what is now the Cuff and Key, perfecting the house drink, the Slammer.

Groves is trying to live down its reputation as a rough and tumble establishment.

"It's hard to live down a reputation," Groves said. "Older people — factory workers and others who came here to eat lunch — tell me fellow workers remark, 'Oh, that's the place where you've got to carry a shotgun.' That's not true, of course. That's the kind of thing I've got to live down."

The 32-year-old ex-cop said he makes his former profession well known.

The bar and restaurant went on the market last April after the Department of Liquor Control denied renewal of the owner's operating permit. Police had testified in Columbus before the control that in one year, 32 complaints were lodged against the establishment.

When Groves quit the police force last March after nine years, he traded eight-hour shifts for 16-hour work days. The Cuff and Key is open until 2:30 a.m.

"Those hours (on the police department) were bad enough, but the job wasn't nearly as time-consuming as this," he said.

"He never has to change schedules," said his wife, Sharon, who helps keep books and works in the kitchen.

"Yeah, I'm just never home," her husband said.

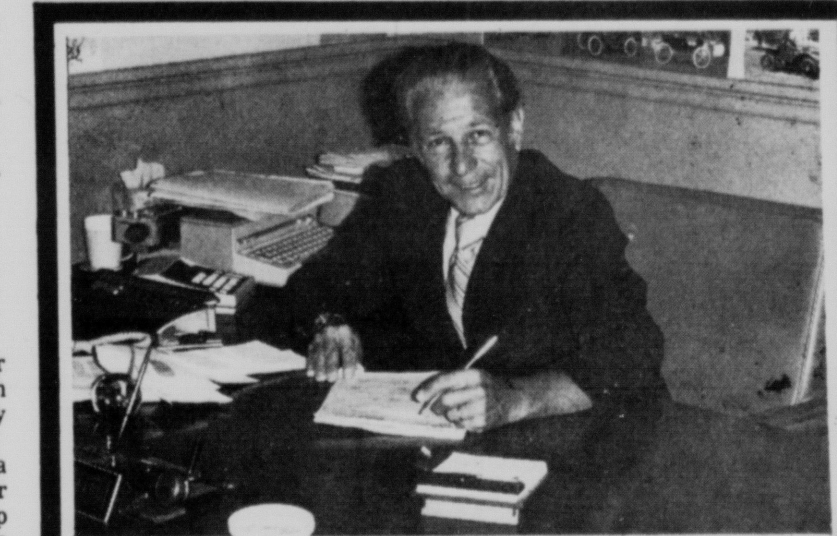

The 20-year-old tavern specializes in cabbage rolls and chili dogs. In September, Groves plans to open at 5 a.m. to pick up the breakfast trade.

Most of the bar patrons are in their early or mid-20s, Groves said. "The young people have commented how the mood in here has changed," said Groves. "They feel they can come in and enjoy themselves and not be bothered by anyone."

KIWANIS SPEAKER — Bob Rickerd introduced Nancy Pickrel as the guest speaker at the Moundbuilders Kiwanis Club meeting this morning at the Pickaway Arms. Ms. Pickrel is an employee and community relations specialist for the General Electric Company at the Circleville Lamp Plant. She spoke on current trends in the nature and composition of the work force, and how those trends would affect business and industry in the next ten years. President Bob Milburn announced that Bob Rickerd would represent the club at the Annual Ohio District Convention in Cleveland August 20-23.

"My resignation, therefore, is simply a logical function of this situation," Dreyer said in his letter.

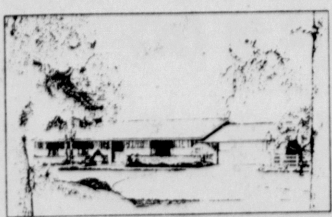

Dreyer has been a member of the board since its inception in 1969, and its chairman since 1970. His resignation, dated Aug. 10, was effective immediately.

The $30 million center, which tests the safety of automobiles on an 8,000-acre site some 40 miles northwest of Columbus, was the target of a critical report late last year by State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson.

Ferguson called the center "an albatross" and said it has lost more than $20 million trying to run itself as a private corporation.

Dreyer refuted the charges and defended the center's freedom from the usual state controls, but the legislature passed — and Rhodes signed — an order putting it under the controlling board.

Swick Year Later, Out Of Football

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — University of Toledo and MidAmerican Conference football fans alike were stunned late last summer when quarterback Gene Swick was an early casualty in the Cleveland Browns' training camp.

After two years of gaining national acclaim for his passing and total offense statistics, Swick appeared to have a future as a player in the National Football League.

A fourth-round draft choice by the Browns, Swick had been named third team All-America by The Associated Press. Swick established an all-time collegiate yardage gained (8,074) passing record during his career.

Certain that a sore shoulder had caused his problems in Cleveland, Swick spend most of last fall trying to catch on with another pro team. He had a tryout with the New York Giants and numerous contacts with the Hamilton Tigercats of the Canadian Football League.

Now, a frustrating year later, Swick has put his athletic plans to rest — at least for the time being.

Employed since November in the City of Toledo's Community Development Division, Swick was recently transferred to the city's inspection department and will return to TU to complete requirements for his bachelor's degree this fall.

"During the past year the thing I found I needed the most was a college degree," Swick said. "So, I'm going back."

"My senior year was a waste academically because of the post-season all-star games, but I can still finish my work in a year."

Swick will get his degree in the College of Education but talks as though a business career is his preference.

"I'm going to continue to work for the city, gaining seniority and maybe later get into business," Swick said. "Toledo is my home. We (wife Linda and daughters Angela, 3, and Sonya, 5 months) just bought a home in the old west end and I'm looking forward to getting back into the swing of going to school."

Swick said he decided to give up football about a month ago, ending more that a year of frustration.

"I guess I finally realized that this must be the way things are supposed to be," Swick said. "I can't say I regret the decision. Until then I was really miserable. I am just now coming out of it."

"I know the chances of me ever making the pros are getting worse and worse," Swick said. "If my shoulder feels alright after this season I may call Canada again next year."

'Mentally Exhausted' Reds Skunk SD, 3-0

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer

Johnny Bench has a long psychological explanation for the fall of the Cincinnati Reds this year.

But in a word, they're "pooped." "We're just mentally exhausted after five years of tough play," Cincinnati's AllStar catcher says. "It isn't the pressure of going after a third straight world championship. Those entire five years just took their toll — and it's all coming out this year."

With the Reds' 3-0 victory over the San Diego Padres Monday night, they managed to save themselves from falling back to the .500 mark — a modest figure not in keeping with their recent glory years.

The Reds won as many as 108 games in one season during their high-riding, five-year stretch from 1972 through 1976. They captured three National League pennants and two World Series in that period.

The Reds' victory improved their unspectacular record to 60-58 and left them 11 games behind Los Angeles after the Dodgers dropped a 6-3 decision to the San Francisco Giants Monday night.

In other National League games, the New York Mets defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 7-4 and the Houston Astros walloped the Atlanta Braves 15-3.

Another of Cincinnati's problems this year has been the offseason of Jack Billingham, one of their top pitchers. Billingham, relegated to the bullpen in recent days, was given a rare start against the Padres and responded with a two-hit performance over seven innings to gain his first victory in two months.

Billingham, 9-9, retired 16 of the first 17 batters he faced to outduel Cy Young winner Randy Jones, 5-9, and snap a personal six-game losing streak. Bench's run-scoring triple gave the Reds a 1-0 lead in the second and his 27th homer of the year, a solo shot in the fourth, made it 3-0.

Giants 6, Dodgers 3
Ed Halicki and Gary Lavelle combined on a five-hitter and Terry Whitfield and Derrel Thomas blasted home runs to lead San Francisco over Los Angeles.

Halicki, 10-9, posted his fifth straight victory over the Dodgers in Los Angeles. Mets 7, Cardinals 4

John Milner drove in four runs with two doubles, triggering rallies in the first and fifth innings that sent New York over St. Louis. The Mets reached John Denny, 7-5, for three runs in the first and drove the Cardinal starter from the mound with four more runs in the fifth.

New York righthander Craig Swan, 8-7, checked the Cards on five hits until surrendering all the St. Louis runs in the eighth, when he received relief help from Bob Apodaca.

Astros 15, Braves 3

Houston scored six runs in the first inning on a two-run homer by Rob Sperring and a grand slam by Art Howe and went on to rout Atlanta behind the combined five-hit pitching of righthanders J.R. Richard and Dan Larson.

Bob Watson and Joe Ferguson each doubled home a run in three run second inning and Richard had a solo homer in a two-run third, staking the Astros to a commanding 11-0 lead. They added four more runs in the sixth, the key hit being a two-run triple by Terry Puhl.

Youth League

TRI COUNTY MOSQUITO

Laurelville 17

Washington No. 2, 1

John Rowland and Mark Shively were on the hill for Laurelville, and Paul Thompson was the Washington pitcher. He also had the lone hit for Washington, a single.

Hitting for Laurelville were Brian Creager with a double and three singles, John Rowland had two doubles and a single, David Disbennett had two singles, Mark Shively had a double and Jerami Garrett had a double.

White Makes Ace

Rodger White recorded a hole in one in the Owens-Illinois Thursday league at Upper Lansdowne Golf Links.

The ace came on the fifth hole at Lansdowne, a 173 par three. White used a four iron.

Kusick, Gorinski Hit O's Hard

By BOB GREENE

AP Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles found a way of getting Minnesota's Rod Carew out of the lineup. And now they're sorry.

Carew, the American League's leading hitting, was sitting on the Minnesota bench along with Lyman Bostock when the Twins took the field against Baltimore Monday night. Twins Manager Gene Mauch said he rested Carew "because every time he plays a full series in Baltimore his allergies act up."

Craig Kusick and Bob Gorinski started for Carew and Bostock and helped lead the Twins to a 13-9 slugfest victory over the Orioles that saw a record seven home runs soar out of Baltimore's Memorial Stadium.

After Kusick blasted two home runs and knocked in five runs, Carew batted for him in the eighth and delivered an RBI single. Gorinski smashed a two-run homer before Bostock pinch-hit for him and doubled, later coming around to score.

The victory, coupled with the New York Yankees' 6-2 win over the Chicago White Sox, boosted the Twins into the AL West lead by one-half game.

"Like anyone else views it (the AL West race), I view it with a certain amount of uncertainty," Mauch said. "Anyone who thinks they can build up a cushion and make a cakewalk of it is kidding himself. If they haven't done it so far, they're not going to do it now. It's four good teams going at it — not great ones, but four good ones."

In other AL games Monday, Boston nipped Kansas City 2-1, California defeated Toronto 7-4, Cleveland downed Oakland 7-2, Detroit clobbered Seattle 13-1 and Milwaukee edged Texas 6-5.

Red Sox 2, Royals 1

George Scott belted his 29th homer and Dwight Evans singled home the winning run as Boston edged Kansas City. The Royals scored in the ninth when Boston reliever Bill Campbell walked the first two men he faced, forcing home a run.

Yankees 6, White Sox 2

Graig Nettles' two-run single backed

Bears, Vikings May Both Lose Players

By The Associated Press

Wally Chambers had one contract torn up and got a new one. Ed White doesn't like his and would like to see it in tatters. In lieu of that, he says he'll quit.

The Chicago Bears gave Chambers, their All-Pro defensive lineman, a new 1977 contract in which there is no option clause. That means that Chambers can become a free agent at the end of the season.

Minnesota guard Ed White isn't satisfied with his contract and wants a hefty salary raise. White says he is retiring rather than play for the Vikings under his present terms.

Chambers, the Bears' No. 1 draft choice in 1973, has been sidelined during the preseason with an injured knee. Coach Jack Pardee, who says Chambers did not work with weights in the off-season to strengthen the knee, demoted Chambers to special team duty.

Chicago general manager Jim Finks admitted the Bears are taking a risk that Chambers will go elsewhere after the season.

"We want Wally Chambers to have a great year," Finks said. "If we are to be successful we have to have Wally playing great football. If Wally has the year we expect of him, he'll be compensated and stay in Chicago. We have

Soap Box Derby

Set For Saturday

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Weighins and car inspections were scheduled today for the 173 racers in the 40th annual All-American Soap Box Derby.

The race itself is set for Saturday afternoon on the 950-foot Derby Downs course. The youngsters spent the night at the YMCA Camp Y-Noah after being welcomed to Akron Monday with a motorcycle escort.

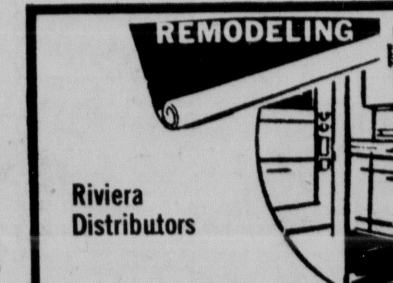

In the senior division for ages 12 and 13, 73 boys and 15 girls from around the country are scheduled to race. The junior division takes in 10- and 11-year-olds and has drawn 59 boys and 26 girls as entrants.

All the participants have won local Derby contests to qualify for the national event.

The juniors are required to build their cars for the "gravity run" from a $39.95 kit. The seniors build their vehicles from scratch, but Derby officials have said they will consider instituting the kit requirement for the seniors as well.

The first test runs are scheduled for Wednesday along with more inspections. The derby cars will be on display for the public at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Derby Downs "Topside" area.

An open house at the camp is scheduled from 1-4 p.m. Thursday and a parade will highlight the preliminary activities on Friday.

Swick Year Later, Out Of Football

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — University of Toledo and MidAmerican Conference football fans alike were stunned late last summer when quarterback Gene Swick was an early casualty in the Cleveland Browns' training camp.

After two years of gaining national acclaim for his passing and total offense statistics, Swick appeared to have a future as a player in the National Football League.

A fourth-round draft choice by the Browns, Swick had been named third team All-America by The Associated Press. Swick established an all-time collegiate yardage gained (8,074) passing record during his career.

Certain that a sore shoulder had caused his problems in Cleveland, Swick spend most of last fall trying to catch on with another pro team. He had a tryout with the New York Giants and numerous contacts with the Hamilton Tigercats of the Canadian Football League.

Now, a frustrating year later, Swick has put his athletic plans to rest — at least for the time being.

Employed since November in the City of Toledo's Community Development Division, Swick was recently transferred to the city's inspection department and will return to TU to complete requirements for his bachelor's degree this fall.

"During the past year the thing I found I needed the most was a college degree," Swick said. "So, I'm going back."

"My senior year was a waste academically because of the post-season all-star games, but I can still finish my work in a year."

Swick will get his degree in the College of Education but talks as though a business career is his preference.

"I'm going to continue to work for the city, gaining seniority and maybe later get into business," Swick said. "Toledo is my home. We (wife Linda and daughters Angela, 3, and Sonya, 5 months) just bought a home in the old west end and I'm looking forward to getting back into the swing of going to school."

Swick said he decided to give up football about a month ago, ending more than a year of frustration.

"I guess I finally realized that this must be the way things are supposed to be," Swick said. "I can't say I regret the decision. Until then I was really miserable. I am just now coming out of it."

"I know the chances of me ever making the pros are getting worse and worse," Swick said. "If my shoulder feels alright after this season I may call Canada again next year."

'Mentally Exhausted' Reds Skunk SD, 3-0

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer

Johnny Bench has a long psychological explanation for the fall of the Cincinnati Reds this year.

But in a word, they're "pooped." "We're just mentally exhausted after five years of tough play," Cincinnati's AllStar catcher says. "It isn't the pressure of going after a third straight world championship. Those entire five years just took their toll — and it's all coming out this year."

With the Reds' 3-0 victory over the San Diego Padres Monday night, they managed to save themselves from falling back to the .500 mark — a modest figure not in keeping with their recent glory years.

The Reds won as many as 108 games in one season during their high-flying, five-year stretch from 1972 through 1976. They captured three National League pennants and two World Series in that period.

The Reds' victory improved their unspectacular record to 60-58 and left them 11 games behind Los Angeles after the Dodgers dropped a 6-3 decision to the San Francisco Giants Monday night.

In other National League games, the New York Mets defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 7-4 and the Houston Astros walloped the Atlanta Braves 15-3.

Another of Cincinnati's problems this year has been the offseason of Jack Billingham, one of their top pitchers. Billingham, relegated to the bullpen in recent days, was given a rare start against the Padres and responded with a two-hit performance over seven innings to gain his first victory in two months.

Billingham, 9-9, retired 16 of the first 17 batters he faced to outduel Cy Young winner Randy Jones, 5-9, and snap a personal six-game losing streak. Bench's run-scoring triple gave the Reds a 1-0 lead in the second and his 27th homer of the year, a solo shot in the fourth, made it 3-0.

Giants 6, Dodgers 3
Ed Halicki and Gary Lavelle combined on a five-hitter and Terry Whitfield and Derrel Thomas blasted home runs to lead San Francisco over Los Angeles.

Halicki, 10-9, posted his fifth straight victory over the Dodgers in Los Angeles. Mets 7, Cardinals 4

John Milner drove in four runs with two doubles, triggering rallies in the first and fifth innings that sent New York over St. Louis. The Mets reached John Denny, 7-5, for three runs in the first and drove the Cardinal starter from the mound with four more runs in the fifth.

New York righthander Craig Swan, 8-7, checked the Cards on five hits until surrendering all the St. Louis runs in the eighth, when he received relief help from Bob Apodaca.

Astros 15, Braves 3
Houston scored six runs in the first inning on a two-run homer by Rob Sperring and a grand slam by Art Howe and went on to rout Atlanta behind the combined five-hit pitching of righthanders J.R. Richard and Dan Larson.

Bob Watson and Joe Ferguson each doubled home a run in three run second inning and Richard had a solo homer in a two-run third, staking the Astros to a commanding 11-0 lead. They added four more runs in the sixth, the key hit being a two-run triple by Terry Puhl.

Vilas Defeats Gottfried

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Argentina's Guillermo Vilas, who withdrew from today's Canadian Open Tennis Tournament citing fatigue, had enough strength to win his fifth consecutive tournament Monday night, defeating Brian Gottfried in the $125,000 tennis classic at Muirfield Village.

Vilas downed Gottfried 6-2, 6-1 on the clay courts, breaking Gottfried's service in the first game and never losing control of the terse match, which elapsed in only one hour and 11 minutes.

Gottfried, of Lauterhill, Fla., who has lost to Vilas four times this year, tried a serve and volley game, but Vilas' admittedly strong passing shots quickly unraveled Gottfried's attack.

Despite the performance, Vilas said he did not feel his best. His coach, Ion Tiriac, said the defending Canadian Open champion was tired from five weeks of continuous play.

"Yes, I played well, but I didn't feel I had my rhythm. I really didn't feel well tonight," he said after the win, worth $20,000.

"I hit my passing shots hard. That was the winner for me. I was returning very well.

Gottfried, who collected $10,000, talked of rhythm, too.

"Rhythm, to say it in one word, I just could never find my rhythm. I just didn't play well," the lanky Gottfried said.

Gottfried managed to break Vilas' service only once, in the fourth game of the first set.

The streaking Vilas, with 35 straight wins on clay and 28 on other surfaces, broke Gottfried in the fifth and seventh games of the first set and served out in the eighth game for a first set win in just 43 minutes.

Vilas opened the second set with another service break as Gottfried committed two unforced net errors. Vilas broke service a final time in the third game as both players then held service throughout.

In the doubles finals, Stan Smith, Sea Pines, S.C., and Bob Lutz, San Clemente, Calif., survived two match points at 4-5 in the second set to win 4-6, 7-5, 6-2, over Gene Mayer, Flushing, N.Y., and Peter Fleming, Chatam, N.J.

Frazier Won't Run From 4th Ali Test

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Former heavyweight champ Joe Frazier says there's no rabbit's blood in his veins. If current king Muhammad Ali wants a fourth fight, Frazier says he's ready.

Frazier said Monday night that he had read news accounts from Europe quoting Ali as saying he would be willing to fight Frazier again. Ali holds a 2-1 edge in their meetings, which are regarded as boxing classics.

"When I was there I gave everybody their shot," Frazier said, "and when I was coming up I fought them all. I didn't bypass anybody. He made the statement, and I'm not going to run away from it.

"You know I ain't got no rabbit's blood in me. If the guy wants to take me on again, you know I'm not going to run," added Frazier, who now performs in a night club act but still runs a gym here.

"I'm booked up for maybe two or three months, but if the champ says he wants to face Ol' Smokey again, I'm ready," said Frazier.

"I understand he said in Europe that he would give me one more shot. I'll go back at it again, and I'll get back out of it with my head on my shoulders again."

Frazier, now 33 and weighing 228 pounds, said he works out at least every other day at his gym and could be in shape for a rematch within two or three months.

Frazier also said he's not afraid of critics who might accuse him of seeking a rematch simply for the money.

"I don't think that anybody that knows Smokin' Joe Frazier will say that," he said. "I'm doing it because I'm sincere about it.

"I've been in the fighting business 17 years. I'm sincere about my business. It's not the money. It's something that I like."

Frazier scored a fifth-round knockout over Jimmy Ellis in February, 1970, to gain the heavyweight title after Ali had been stripped of the crown for his refusal to enter military service.

Frazier lost the title in January, 1973, when he was knocked out by George Foreman in the second round at Kingston, Jamaica. Frazier has been knocked out only three times in his career.

Ali decisioned Frazier in 12 rounds at New York in January, 1974, and scored a 14th round technical knockout over Frazier six months later in the "Thrilla in Manila."

Frazier announced his retirement after he was knocked out a second time by Foreman in the fifth round of a fight at Uniondale, N.Y., in June, 1976.

Trapshooters Dedicated

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP) — They come here from all over the country with one thing in mind: breaking clay targets.

They are trapshooters; people dedicated to a sport that seems to have no end of growth in sight.

It's the Grand American Trapshooting tournament and it has been held at this little town along the fringe of the Dayton airport every summer since 1924.

The Amateur Trapshooting Association conducts the event, which this year runs for nine days, including three preliminary days, on the grounds of its headquarters where ATA officials say they have the largest trapfield in the world. The final day is Saturday.

There are entrants from Hawaii to Massachusetts; from Alaska to Florida. Foreign countries are represented too, including Brazil and Canada.

About 5,000 ATA members are expected to shoot in this year's event, said Keith Riggsby, a spokesman for the organization.

Linemen Under Scrutiny

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Offensive linemen with illegality in their hearts are under close scrutiny from National Football League officials with holding on their minds.

That's the observation of veteran Cincinnati Bengals center Bob Johnson.

Johnson contends referees have gone overboard in the Bengals' first two preseason games in an effort to curb offensive holding.

"What they want to do is make it too strict in preseason, so we can work on it before the season starts," said Johnson.

He was upset after Saturday night's 45-0 rout of Tampa Bay, in which the Bengals were called for six holding penalties, including four during a brief span of the first quarter.

Art McNally, supervisor of NFL officials, said the crackdown, which began last year, will continue throughout the 1977 season.

"Rules are the same all the time. We're interested in being consistent," said McNally. "You don't go into a set game or games with the intention of calling something differently than you would any other period of time."

McNally said that NFL owners unanimously adopted a "get-tough-with-holding" policy at their June meeting.

Several Bengals offensive linemen have linked the crackdown on holding to the rise of quarterback injuries.

NFL rules state that offensive linemen must keep their hands cupped or closed, elbows flexed and arms with the framework of their bodies.

"It's such a gray area," Johnson protested. "How can an official see if my hands are cupped or not?"

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FOR WEDNESDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): With your innate enthusiasm and competence, you should be able to reap a fine harvest. Some good opportunities for advancing your interests in the offing.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Some puzzling situations indicated. If you can touch bases with certain persons outside your immediate field, however, you can work things out.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Ride along with propitious influences! Acquaint yourself with new trends and take measures as occasion demands.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Fine gains for like efforts. However, be on the lookout for "gimmicks" that could trip you, persons who would undermine your self-confidence by belittling your efforts.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Auspicious aspects favor partnerships, promise cooperation in putting over new deals and projects. Don't procrastinate.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): A splendid configuration of your planets encourages your fine talents and know-how. This is a day in which to give your finest performance, to stress good management.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Endeavors of past should bring reward now. Keep up the good work and your future will be even brighter.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): Do not become so deeply involved in the affairs of others that you invite fatigue, distress. An excellent performance now possible if you concentrate on your OWN goals.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): In tight or unexpected situations, remain at ease, think things out; don't rush in without full data or know-how.

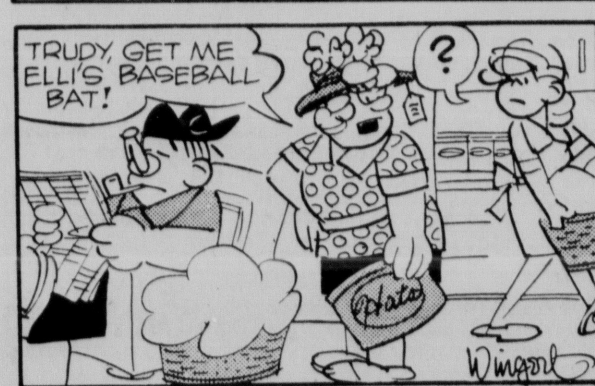

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Take care of essentials assiduously, with primary factors thoroughly understood. Fine aspects encourage bright beginnings, sustained effort.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Improving conditions, but some areas need more patience, stronger effort. Your special talents qualify you to reap benefits.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You may not accomplish all that you wish, but you will attain many things — through an unflattering spirit of enterprise, plus self-discipline. Avoid hasty decisions.

YOU BORN TODAY are one of the most practical and efficient of Leotes. You have an unusual sense of values, tremendous organizing ability and an outstanding gift of leadership. You would make an excellent executive and, if you do go into business, could well wind up as company president or general director of policy. If you choose another career, however, you'll probably still land on the top, through sheer force of will and determination, coupled with good management. Other outlets for your talents: the theater, the law, banking and building. Birthdate of: David Crockett, Amer. frontiersman; Maureen O'Hara and Mae West, actresses.

Georgia was the youngest of the 13 original colonies that took part in the American Revolution, according to Encyclopedia Britannica.

No Lady

HIALEAH, Fla. (AP) -

The starter and assistants at Hialeah race track all cheered when Trainer Jimmy Croll announced he was sending his bad-tempered filly, Noble Madame, to the farm to be bred.

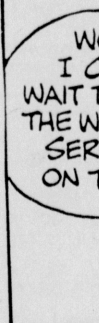

"I've been around a lot of tough horses," starter Charlie Camac said. "But she was the worst. Noble Madame did not live up to her name. She was a hellcat. I think her fractious behavior kept her from showing her real worth. She might have been an outstanding race horse with a better disposition."

LEGAL NOTICE
OHIO OFFICE OF MANPOWER DEVELOPMENT
CETA TITLE II, MODIFICATION 14
CETA TITLE VI, MODIFICATION 12

The Ohio Department of Administrative Services, Office of Manpower Development, has announced its plans for Titles II and VI, funded through the U.S. Department of Labor under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973 (CETA). Title II provides unemployed persons with temporary employment providing needed public services in areas of high unemployment. Title VI provides employment and training opportunities primarily to the long-term unemployed or AFDC recipients, and whose family incomes are 70 per cent or less of the lower living standard income level. Participants must meet certain eligibility criteria and be certified by the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services. Special consideration for enrollment in Title VI projects will be given to Veterans and CETA Title I participants. The purpose of Title II, Modification 14 is to obligate an additional $9,516,510 to operate the program through September 30, 1978. This will bring the total grant allocation to $14,869,764. The purpose of Title VI, Modification 12 is to obligate an additional $57,616,506 to operate the program through September 30, 1978. This will bring the total grant allocation to $66,514,475. "If you haven't done it lately, take a look at the insurance policies that cover your farm and equipment.

"If you're like a lot of people, you'll find coverages that overlap. Which means you're paying more than you should.

"We'd suggest an Auto-Owners Farm-Pak policy. A policy that covers your farm and all its equipment with just one premium payment. So you'll probably end up saving money.

"And that's just one reason we recommend Auto-Owners insurance to the people we serve."

of each breed.

In the distance the snowwhite St. Croix look like normal sheep that have been shorn of wool. The Barbados have short brown hair and black underlines, and look somewhat like deer at first glance.

Parker is interested in a number of traits which these hair sheep are said to have. He said they are reported to have early sexual maturity, high lambing rates, short breeding intervals, natural resistance to internal parasites and great heat tolerance than standard breeds.

Parker will work with the test animals to verify to what extent the traits exist. He has crossbred both the Barbadoes and St. Croix with some Rambouillet to see if any of these traits can be incorporated into available standard breeds.

The offspring from the crossbreeds are an interesting mixture of lambs with hair and lambs with brown and black wool in varying patterns.

The University of Florida at Gainesville and Utah State University at Logan are cooperatively experimenting with the St. Croix to see if performance results are similar in different parts of the country.

Other experiments involve the hair sheep, their offspring and the crosses with other breeds under complete yearround confinement and partial confinement combined with forage utilization.

Other studies are underway with a number of commercial types and crosses among standard breeds and Straightbred Finnsheep. The latter has the potential of producing up to five lambs annually. The Barbados and St. Croix are reported to sexually mature as early as six months of age and possibly producing two lamb crops a year.

Ohio has some 13,000 sheep flocks on farms, perhaps more than any other state in the country. Most flocks are small but Parker feels more farmers will become interested in looking for replacement ewes and in increasing flock sizes.

Parker hopes intensive production-oriented research with standard breeds and the more exotic breeds may be what is needed to start Ohio in a new upward trend in sheep production.

Patience Gone, Youth Hangs Self

NEW YORK (AP) — Apartment 6J at 580 Castle Hill Avenue in the Bronx was George Curet's home, his cage and ultimately the site he chose for his self-destruction. He was 10.

Hour after hour, day after day, George Curet was left in the apartment to tend to his 6-year-old brother, Bruce. Their mother and two older brothers worked. Their father did not live with them.

All this meant that the two boys idled away their hours inside, while other children from the 12-story project played outside.

A resident of the building described it as "run-down" but "the place to come to from burnt-out buildings."

It was in that setting that George Curet lived and George Curet died.

"This year, he didn't come down a lot. His mother wouldn't let him come down," said Robert Alvarado, 14, who described himself and his 10-year-old brother Robby as George's only friends in the building.

"The only time he ever came down was to ride his bicycle. But he only did that a couple of times a year. His older brothers would never take him anywhere."

"He was a quiet kid," Alvarado said. "He didn't like to mess around. And besides, he always had to take care of his brother."

His mother wasn't always happy with the way George handled Bruce. The younger boy would often lose things or else cry to his mother that his older brother had mistreated him. George would be blamed — and sometimes yelled at or maybe hit.

That, at least, is the version Robert Alvarado tells. George wouldn't talk about it — not even to his few friends, including Alvarado.

"I never heard him say nothing," the youth admitted.

Typically, the two brothers were alone in the apartment Monday morning when telephone company worker McKinley Alston arrived to install a phone. But George Curet's patience and hopes had run out.

"Is your mother home?" Alston asked.

"No, just my brother," the young boy said. "But he's hanging."

Alston found George hanging from a closet door, a belt tied around his neck, a chair tipped over beneath him. "A definite suicide," a police spokesman said.

Bruce told police his older brother had asked him to kick the chair out from under him. When he refused, George kicked the chair out for him-self.

Nun Board Candidate In Cincy

CINCINNATI (AP) — A Roman Catholic nun, a veteran teacher claiming experience in administration and financing, said she sees no conflicts of interest in running for the Cincinnati Board of Education.

"There are many Catholic children in public schools," said Sister Ann Rene McConn, 39, believed to be the first nun to seek a post on the public board. She was a parochial school teacher for 10 years and has a masters degree in education. She is studying for a second degree in administration at the University of Cincinnati.

"My role, as a school board member, is to administer the law, as it is. But that doesn't rule out opportunities for cooperation between public and nonpublic schools," she said.

Sister Ann Rene was selected as a candidate by the Citizens School Committee which opposes the current board in the 60,000-pupil district.

"It isn't exactly our traditional role to emphasize our abilities. That's why I believe it's important to keep a sense of humor," she laughed. "I don't want to be among those who breathe their own hot air."

Her final decision to run was ap-proved by her religious order, the Sisters of Notre Dame.

"They were very supportive. A few volunteered to give me a piece of their minds on what's wrong with the school system," she said.

Aside from teaching in Cincinnati, Sister Ann Rene served three years as a community activities director. She said she loves the city she watches over from the hilltop home she shares with five other nuns.

"Each night I look over the city and pray for it, for everything that is there. I feel kind of like Moses, but it's a good feeling," smiled the nun.

"When they asked me to run, I figured that if I believed in my prin-ciples, I'd have to be true to them," said Sister Ann Rene.

cloudiness was to become heavier by afternoon with showers and thun-dershower spreading eastward across the state.

A warm front over southwestern Ohio was moving northeastward and out of the state, bringing warm and very humid conditions.

A cold front over the northern Mississippi Valley this morning was to move into northwestern Ohio tonight, stretching across central Ohio by Wednesday morning.

Showers and thundershowers will cover Ohio tonight with a chance of rain north Wednesday. Some showers also were likely south Wednesday as the front drifted slowly southward to the Ohio River.

Highs today were expected to be in the 80s with lows tonight from the mid 60s to near 70. Wednesday will be a little cooler as a northerly flow spreads over the state behind the cold front. Highs will range from the mid 70s north to the low 80s south.

Thief Has Close Escapes

A would-be shoplifter made three narrow escapes after attempting to remove goods from two city grocery stores Monday evening.

According to the report, at ap-proximately 6 p.m. employes of Olney's Short Stop on E. Main St. told Ptl. Ron Smith that a white male subject, approximately 25 years of age, entered the store and removed two 12-packs of beer from the cooler. He then made his way out of the store without paying. Employees reportedly searched the area around the store, but were unable to find the culprit.

At approximately 10:30 p.m. the same man entered the store and again removed beer from the cooler. This time manager Dave Olney started after the subject to question him. The man then dropped the beer on the counter, told the cashier that he had forgotten his wallet and identification, and left the store.

Olney gave chase but lost the man just east of the store.

Police believe the subject was the same man that entered the Kroger Store in the Lancaster Pike Shopping Center at approximately 10:10 p.m.

Eric Carroll, an employee of the Kroger Store told Ptl. Smith that a man of the same description started to leave the store without paying for four six packs of beer and three cartons of cigarettes.

As Carroll approached the man, he reportedly turned and threw the merchandise at Carroll, then fled the store. Carroll gave chase, but the man dove into the open window of a waiting car. Before the car pulled away, Carroll managed to grab the culprit by the legs and succeeded in pulling the man's shoes from his feet.

Police got a description of the car from witnesses in the area at the time of the incident.
